Entertainment Ensical and Literary A musical and literary entertainment by the Ladies' Aid Society of Hamiline M. E.
Church was given last night at Grand Army Hall to defray the expense consequent upon the erection of a substantial fence around the church. A large company was present and listened to a programme which was well rendered throughout, the following being among those which deserve especial mention: Solo, Professor Whipple; recitations, "Shadows." "Papa's Letter."
"Aunty Doleful," "Curfew Bell," Mrs.
Burnett; recitations, Master Charlie Burnett; solo, Miss Minuie Boughton; recitation, "Divorce," which was excellently done, Mrs. Nailor; instrumental solo, Mrs.
Galvin. The exercises were directed by Mrs. C. L. Roach, the president of the society, refreshments were served at their close and every one left feeling well satisfied with the evening's enjoyment.
The piano used on this occasion was

"The Treason of Infidelity." "The Treason of Infidelity."

The lecture last night at Masonic Temple on the above subject by the well-known journalist, Mr. William D. Hughes, attracted a large and intelligent assemblage of ladies and gentlemen. The lecturer was in fine voice and held his audience captive for at least an hour by a learned, logical and convincing argument to show the falsity of infidelity and the truthfulness of Christianity. Modern heresies were mercilessly exposed and the glories of Divine faith vividly pictured. Without opening or quoting from the Bible Mr. Hughes clearly demonstrated from reason, from unture and from the constitution of man the existence of God and the divine origin of humanity. The lecture was, indeed, a masterly effort, and one which reflected great credit upon its author.

Gone to Join the Gang.

Saturday evening last about twenty seamen, belonging to the United States Fish Commission steamer Albatros, took leg-bail and bid adien to the "life of a sallor." They allege that their reason for desertion was due to being overworked. As nearly all the deserters were formerly members of the "tramps" brigade," their story about being overworked can be taken with a degree or two of allowance. The life of a sailor has some charms for a natural tramp in winter, but as soon as the little birds begin their chirping by way of ushering in the spring months, ye tramp feels it his duty to go forth on a pilgrinage of plunder, which he does as naturally as a duck takes to water. The Albatros, of which Licutenant-Commander Tanner is commander, is being fitted out at the navyyard for a cruise up the Mediterranean.

Social Science Association, D. C.
The naper presented at the regular meeting of this association, which occurred Saturday evening, in the parlors of the Spencerian Business College, was by Professor Edward Sandford Burgess, and entitled "Old Norse and Its Neighbor Literatures Compared." It was treated in a comprehensive and instructive manner, and called out an interesting discussion, which was participated in by Professor Blodgett, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Randall Waite, Rev. A. Floridus Steele, Mr. Hitz, Mrs. S. A. Spencer, Mrs. Anne Tolman Smith and Mrs. Lita Barney Sayles. Social Science Association, D. C.

MERRICK LABORS HARD

To Get Semething Out of Dorsey to Help His Case, But Signally Fails. Ex-Senator S. W. Dorsey continued his testi-mony in the Star-Route case yesterday after-noon after the report of The Curric closed. Mr. Morrick asked the witness if he did not

Mr. Morrick asked the witness if he did not know that within a few months after his assuming charge of the business it he did not know that within a few months after his assuming charge of the business the receipter from the routes had been increased to $101, 246,35 per annum.

Colonel logersol objected to the question. His Henor said the fact could neither be proved or disproved by what the witness might recoilect.

Mr. Merrick thought it hardly probable that a man could have no recollection of so large and the country of th Rerdell as a Thief. The route from Toquerville to Adairville was then inquired into. Mr. Dorsey eald that Rerdell not only had an interest in the route, but he paid kerdell $3,000 a year for his orvices.

"To attend to your business?" inquired Mr.
Merrick.
"He ought to have done so," replied the witness.
"Did he not?" insinuatingly asked the "No, sir;" promptly came back from the winess. "He stole about $5,000, I believe, on that route. Well, $4,000 to make it exact."

"When?" was saked.
"About a year and a half ago," answered the

"About a year and a half ago," answered the witness.

"Who from?" said Mr. Merrick.
"Realer and myself," replied Mr. Dersey.
"How was it done?" asked Mr. Merrick.
"There were subcoutrates given to him for the entire pay," said the witness. "Besler held drafts for the entire, and was to pay the subcoutractors. Refel it went to Boslor—"Do you know this of your own knowledge?" asked Mr. Merrick.
"If was told—"began the witness.
"Never mind what you were told," interrupted Mr. Merrick. "We only want what you know."
"I know that pointedly answered the witness.

At this point Mr. Merick interrapted the winess and prevented a further statement in regard to Rordell's steal.

The counsel for the defense wanted the witness to be permitted to proceed, but the Court declined to permit it, and said that the matter was neither pertinent nor collateral, although called out by the pressention.

Mr. Bills undertook to say that the statement was unitue.

Mr. Ingersoil offered to prove that it was true.

The witness said that he ought to know omething about it when he had paid the noney himself. But the Court refused to permit a further

But the Court refused to permit a further suswer.

The witness said that Bosler went into the business to advance money. When witness left this city in June, 1879, he had no intention of returning, Supposed that he had informed Bosler as to the nature of the business, but had no recollection of having a statement made for that purpose, or of loaving directed Bordell to show the books to Bosler. Probably saw Bosler in this city or New York, and told him about the business.

Mr. Merrick asked if he could then remember enough of the details to satisfy Bosler.

The witness supposed that he could; then there was a statement of the number of the routes, their pay, and other details pasted upon the corner of Bertell's deek; perhaps that had been referred to. Bosler was to alternated the money, and receive interest for it, he was also to receive a third interest as a beams. The witness would not have referred besier to such a man as Rerdell, because Bosler was in the habit of thoroughly examining into matters when he advanced money. Had settled with Bosler just before the beginning of this trial, and the secount book had been given to witness. Ould not any when it was given.

Mr. Merrick pushed the inquiry into this given.

Mr. Merrick pushed the inquiry into this subject, but the witness had no recollection, except that it had been recolved more than three weeks ano. He volunteered to look it up, but Mr. Merrick said that he was satisfied with his statement upon the subject and the court adjourned.

A Frightful Collision.

New York.—The valuable trotting horse, "Jim Sands," was run into in a race, sustaining severe bruises and lamences. His owner, Mr. Noble Thompson, of the well-known stables, 1393 Broadway, states that he placed the animal under the care of a veterinary surgeon, who in three months falled to benefit him. Treatment with St. Jacob's Oil was then begue, and the horse not only entirely recovered, but was enabled to trot mile nests in 2-21. Mr. Thompson regards the Oil as the pain-cure of the age.
